Four Others of Eighteen
Made Ill Seem Likely To Die

ATLANTA, Nov. 6 (AP)—Trunks upraised, circus elephants trumpeted in seeming farewell today as the carcasses of seven fellows, killed by poison, were dragged from their tent.

State Chemist Reynolds Clark reported arsenic was found in a visceral examination of one and said this type of poison probably caused all the deaths.

Four others of the surviving forty elephants in the herd were ill and attendants frantically dosed them with antidotes through syringes forced into their throats. Up to tonight, none of the others appeared ill.

Sets Circus Record

Officials of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus said it was the greatest mass death of elephants in circus history. They were unable immediately to explain how the animals became poisoned.

Publicity agent Frank Braden said eighteen elephants had become ill of arsenic when the show was in Charlotte, N. C., several years ago, but all recovered. He said a chemical plant formerly occupied the grounds on which the animals fed there.

Deaths Came Quickly

The circus played Charlotte the first of the week and arrived here yesterday for a two-day stand. Shortly after the show unloaded, two elephants showed signs of illness and died within thirty minutes, Trainer Walter McClain said. They were Alice and Liz. One by one died Puqua, the African puma elephant, Blanche, Mary and Tillie. Early today Mable slowly sank onto her side and died.

John Ringling North, president of the circus, said each animal was valued at from $10,000 to $15,000.

Bag Many Ducks And Pay Big Fines

LITTLE FALLS, Minn., Nov. 6 (AP)—What—no snipe?

Bulging game bags of two St. Paul men, Edward Mayer and Robert Yeager revealed to game wardens: 104 blue bill ducks, ten buffleheads, two pin tails, two red-heads, one mud hen and one merganser or fish duck not recommended as piece de resistance.

Each man was fined $200 plus $10 costs on charges of exceeding the twenty bird possession limit of migratory water fowl regulations.

FDR Says No Labor or Industrial Leader Will Halt U. S. Production

Maxim Litvinoff

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—While representatives of thirty-five nations applauded, President Roosevelt pledged today that no "misguided" industrialist or labor leader shall prevail against America's defense production and its "unlimited commitment" that there shall be a free world.

Warning that the United States was prepared to go all the way to bring about Hitler's downfall, the chief executive told the final session of the international labor office conference that this country must make "full sacrifices" now or postpone the day of "real sacrifice—as did the French—until it is too late."

Speech Broadcast

The president spoke from the mirrored and red-draped east room of the White House before 250 delegates to the conference established by the League of Nations to improve the standard of living of workers the world over. His words were broadcast over three networks and to every other nation by short-wave.

Repeatedly the delegates broke into applause, their first when Mr. Roosevelt, speaking directly to representatives of occupied lands, asked them to transmit this pledge to their people:

"You have not been forgotten; you will not be forgotten."

The president also struck out against a few "misguided" industrialists and leaders of labor who, he said, think only of profits and "deliberately delay defense output by using their economic power" to force acceptance of their demands, rather than use the established machinery for the mediation of industrial disputes.

Sees "Few" Labor Leaders

"Yes, they are but few," he said, measuring his words. "They do not represent the great mass of American workers and employers. The American people have made an unlimited commitment that there shall be a free world. Against that commitment, no individual or group shall prevail."

He asserted that labor under the Nazi system had become the "slave of the military state," that Berlin was the "principle slave-market of the world," and that Germany had imported 2,000,000 foreign civilian laborers to replace Nazi workers shipped to the front.

Henry F. Baker Dead

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6 (AP)—Henry F. Baker, 82, retired banker and businessman and past president-general of the national society of the sons of the American revolution, died tonight after a two weeks illness.

Race Horse Trainer Fined for Cruelty

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6 (AP)—Moe Simon, race horse trainer, was convicted today on a cruelty-to-animals charge involving the "unnerving" of the plater Meadow Morn and was fined $500 and costs by Judge Samuel K. Dennis.

Veterinarians testified that "unnerving" was an operation sometimes used on horses with leg injuries. Removal of nerves keeps them from feeling pain and enables them to race. Some suffer no bad effects but others become infected.

Meadow Morn lost a hoof through infection resulting from "unnerving" and had to be destroyed.

Simon testified he understood the horse had been "unnerved" before he and owner Jerome J. Kates claimed him, but Judge Dennis said he believed the operation was performed after Meadow Morn broke down while training under Simon last summer.

The jurist acquitted Kates, saying there was nothing in the evidence to show that he had any knowledge of, or responsibility for, the animal's condition.

FLORENCE, S. C., Nov. 6 (AP)—An urgent telephone call came to the police station.

A four-year-old girl wanted the police to make an immediate arrest. A six-year-old boy had slapped her.

democracies "is a real fact which is growing and gaining strength for the benefit of our common cause of liberty."

Rudolf Hess's flight to Scotland last May was an attempt to bring Britain and the United States into a war against Russia, Stalin asserted.

Stalin acknowledged the grievous losses of Russian territory, saying:

"The enemy has taken a large part of the Ukraine, White Russia, Moldavia, Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia and a number of other parts of our country."

"The German Fascist invaders are plundering our country. They are seizing the best lands of our peasants. They are torturing our peasants and our women and children."

Clearly, he said, "any other state having the losses in territory that we have had at the present time would not have withstood it, but would have fainted away."

This, declared Stalin proudly, was just another case of the German's miscalculation of "having overestimated their own strength and underestimated our resistance."

Russia, he went on, was not like France.

"The French government allowed themselves to be frightened by the specter of revolution. They went on their knees to Hitler and refused to defend their own country."

East Asia where Japan claims dominance, and Miyako said "evidently premier Tojo wishes to get a quick decision on Japanese-American talks."

The Times and Advertiser's hint of possible forthcoming operations by Japanese forces based in French Indo-China was accompanied by a declaration that "there is every hope that force will not be necessary, but Japan is prepared for any eventualities."

Traffic over the Burma supply route, the foreign office organ said, already has been hampered by air raids—"but the permanent solution would be Japanese occupation of the road."

When and how Japan's troops move "are matters for the high command," it added but asserted that once such an expedition is undertaken, "America's choice between letting Chungking down or keeping Chungking up would be solved automatically, for it could not assist Chiang Kai-Shek's party if the sole remaining major avenue of supply were cut."

"Perhaps it would be appreciated by peace groups in the United States if Japan were to block the Burma road, putting an end to American large-scale intervention in China. Chungking then could not blame the United States for abandonment of Lease-Lend aid so far as the Chiang party is concerned."

Japan sent a sharp protest to Russia today and demanded a prompt reply to her charges that the 4,523-ton Japanese steamer Keshi Maru was hit by a Russian mine in the sea of Japan and sunk with the apparent loss of 149 persons. Another 247 aboard were rescued.

Two Dead

Superintendent John W. Bosworth, whose men are conducting an investigation in cooperation with two Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, said there was a "possibility of sabotage."

Unofficial reports placed the number of men in the area, about miles from the business section of Charleston, West Virginia's capital, at between eighteen and thirty. Sears said there were about fifteen men normally employed in the explosion sector.

Some workmen said that only unit operators remain on duty during the lunch hour and that the blast occurred at 12:32 p. m., two minutes after the lunch period ended.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Stalin's cry to his people that Hitler's blitzkrieg has failed finds an echo in London, where military men point to the situation around Leningrad and Moscow. It remains to be seen, however, whether the lull in the north is not merely a prelude to a final all-out German effort to smash a road to oil sources in the Caucasus. That is the real reason for Hitler's attack on Russia.

Even Berlin now intimates that the Nazis have already dug in for the winter around Leningrad and will soon do so about Moscow. Actually, the struggle on the Moscow front for the past two weeks has seemed to consist of tactical rather than strategic operations. Apparently the aim has been to improve positions for a winter siege.

That does not apply equally, however, to the indicated slowing of the Nazi drives in the Crimea, about the Rostov corner, or north of Rostov between the Donets and the Don rivers. Whether lull there may be on those fronts must prove merely temporary by every indication.

Sevastopol in Danger

British military observers familiar with the Crimean terrain now express a guarded hope that a siege of Sevastopol may hold up indefinitely a German advance via the Crimea upon the Caucasus.

The Germans have countered with a boast that they have effected a wide break-through to the Black Sea coast of the Crimea, over massive mountain barriers. The only word as to the locale of the breakthrough is that it was between Feodosiya and Yalta. Presumably the Germans have forced a passage of mountain passes southeast of Simferopol to gain a footing on the coast east of the western panhandle on which Sevastopol stands.

Germans Near Kerch

No further advance along the narrow eastern pan-handle, the Kerch promontory, was claimed although at Feodosiya the Germans are only some sixty miles from the port of Kerch on the strait of the same name separating the Crimea from the Caucasus. It is in that direction that the threat to Russia defense lines along the lower Don, hinging at Rostov, is greatest. Presumably Nazi efforts to clear the Kerch promontory are awaiting mopping-up operations elsewhere in the Crimea.

similar to those which led to the adoption of national prohibition in 1917.

Sees Possible Return

He said that unless repeal is made to work through cooperation of the industry, an informed public, and sane and vigorous law enforcement, prohibition might return.

"The return of national prohibition would be a catastrophe of the first rank, setting us back many generations not only in the social control of alcohol, but also in our constant fight against racketeering and corruption."

"The blame will be entirely ours, for no community goes dry if there are on the statute books sound liquor laws intelligently and honestly administered with due regard for prevailing public opinion."

Inspect Baltimore Places

A cross-cut inspection tour of various types of some of Baltimore's 2,800 licensed retail liquor establishments was scheduled tonight, the delegates making unannounced stops at several dozen places of different type.

Stewart Berkshire, chief of the U. S. treasury alcohol tax unit, will make the principal address tomorrow after which the conference will adjourn to Annapolis to be received by Governor and Mrs. O'Connor. There will be a banquet in the evening in Baltimore. The session ends Saturday.

day morning were said in official Russian advices to have regrouped a series of towns and villages and to have put German communications in chaos.

Beat Back Nazi Tanks

Specifically in the sector of Moscow about Mozhaisk, which is fifty-seven miles distant, Russian artillery fire was declared to be beating back swarms of German tanks.

On the left flank of the Moscow front, somewhere to the southwest, the strongest of all these Russian drives apparently was reaching the proportions of a sustained counter-offensive. For the fourth successive day the Nazis were being pushed back and the rear guard of their retreat was being annihilated, it was said.

"Smart" Pupils Often Stumped By Arithmetic

Teachers Shouldn't Threaten Children with Demotion

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
"Dear Dr. Myers: I'm writing an S. O. S. I suppose that is the way all mothers feel about a problem to which they can find no solution."

"It concerns my seven-year-old daughter who is in the second grade and her inability to do arithmetic. Last year she was second-best in her room in all her studies but they did very little in arithmetic."

"Tonight she came home looking as though she had lost her last friend. When I asked her what was wrong she burst into tears and confided that she couldn't do her numbers and had to stay after school, and that her teacher said she hoped she would not have to transfer any one to the 'B' section."

"She is making herself ill with fear of losing a coveted place in the 'A' section. Dr. Myers, there must be some way that I can help my child, since failure means unhappiness to her. I am enclosing a self-addressed envelope and a three-cent stamp."

Home Heaps

I sent her my page of 100 addition facts and my page of 100 subtraction facts, advising her to have the child work first on the addition facts, learning all of them before attacking the subtraction facts; to have her copy off four or five of these complete facts a day and learn them by heart; to review each day before beginning new facts, all the facts she had learned before; and to be sure not to hurry so as to make no mistakes at all.

As I wrote this mother, some one in the family must have made so much of the child's standing in her class at school. I regret, of course, that the teacher threatened the little girl with demotion to a slower section.

Now the purpose of having two or more sections in a grade or class is that each child may work approximately at his own rate and on his own level of ability, so as to enjoy maximum satisfaction from achievement.

Danger of Threats

Many teachers, otherwise intelligent, will, stupidly, threaten a child in a faster group with demotion to a slower group with the hope of stimulating greater effort in him. Teachers should know better. Such threats almost never have the desired effect. Rather, they have the opposite effect, as a rule.

The greatest harm from such threat is the stigma it places on the slower group, for the child and his parents. We build on hopes not on fears; on successes not on failures. Let us aim always to find a way to help the child gain more success in whatever he tries to learn, and then to celebrate his success.

Some years ago, I wrote, at the request of the U. S. Commissioner of Education, a pamphlet entitled, "Education of Young Children Through Celebrating Their Successes." A copy of it may be had by sending a five-cent stamp to the Supt. of Public Documents, Washington, D. C.

Taking Workers' Money Under False Pretenses

SENATOR VANDENBERG is doing a good service in behalf of the workers of the nation in resisting Secretary Morgenthau's proposal to increase Social Security payroll taxes as a means of financing defense costs and controlling inflation.

The scheme would, as the senator has declared, be a "raid" that would be "unsound, unwise and a breach of trust." He said that he could "not blame the secretary for hunting every possible conceivable device to get the money to pay our gargantuan bills," but suggested that if a special payroll tax is necessary "to finance the treasury and to help fight suicidal inflation," it should "frankly be a payroll tax on everybody, frankly collected for these purposes."

Any attempt to place this proposed increase within the needs of old-age insurance purposes cannot be even thinly disguised. The American Association for Social Security, a nonpartisan organization long devoted to advocacy of sound social security programs in the United States, points out that the increase is absolutely unnecessary for that purpose. It notes that a large reserve has already accumulated in the old-age insurance fund, despite the fact that Congress scrapped the principle of large-scale reserves in favor of a pay-as-you-go program in 1939. "Revival of the reserve principle now as a means of deterring inflation and procuring defense funds under the label of Social Security," the association says, "would not only prove insufficient for the defense program and probably accelerate rather than deter inflation, but would spell the ruin of the social security program."

The association also warns against adoption of the administration's plan to concentrate control of the unemployment insurance program in the federal government. Substitution of a federalized system for the present state systems would create new dangers of federal bureaucracy and abolition of states' rights, according to the association, and would impair the soundness of the reserve fund built up for unemployment benefits.

Do those now covered by Social Security have so much money in their pockets that, after paying the greatly increased taxes now levied and the greatly increased cost of living really fear they will be in imminent danger of causing inflation unless Secretary Morgenthau, in his own words, "mops up" this money? They can answer that question only with a scornful laugh.

The one per cent which the workers are now having deducted from their pay envelopes, together with a similar payment by their employers, goes into the treasury as a premium payment on old-age insurance, although the treasury is spending the money for other purposes as rapidly as it can be collected. If Secretary Morgenthau gets away with his latest proposal by increasing the present rate fivefold or more he would, in effect, be levying a gross income tax upon every worker in America covered by the Social Security program, which means forty-five or fifty million men and women. To superimpose such a gross income tax upon all the other taxes now exacted from them would make them the most heavily taxed group in this country or, for that matter, in the civilized world. Why they should be penalized so drastically as they go on working to help pay a huge share of the defense costs is an inexplicable mystery. It is no wonder one newspaper reader, whose feeling is likely typical of millions of others, declares he has "never heard from the lips of any public servant" a proposal "so shameful, cynical, senseless and utterly regardless of the rights of the people."

The Case of One Wilhelm Meier

SO NATURAL is our enjoyment of our traditional American freedoms and so accustomed have we been to them that it is difficult for many of us to understand and to appreciate the plight of those to whom they are denied and the causes of their denial. It is because we have fallen into the habit of taking these things for granted that we have to be reminded of the duties and sacrifices we are facing to protect and preserve them, which, of course, Americans can be expected to do to the uttermost.

A dispatch just coming over the Associated Press wires will help that too frequently derelict understanding. It is from Berlin and relates how one Wilhelm Meier, of Bombach, got lured at the continual "special bulletin" announcements coming over the radio since the start of the Russian campaign.

When we are bored or displeased with any kind of radio announcement or offering all we do is to turn the dial, or switch a knob, and that's that, and to hell with all and sundry. But not so with Wilhelm Meier, according to the account given by the newspaper Strassburger Neueste Nachrichten. The German newspaper reports that one of the radio announcements with its tremendous ruffle of drums and blaring of victory bugles burst into Wilhelm's reflective solitude while he was calmly drinking his beer at a restaurant. Wilhelm requested that the radio be shut off. He also had some comments on the high command bulletins.

But now Wilhelm Meier is in jail for a stay of two and a half years. A special court at Friburg decided his attitude plus his remarks was worth that stretch of confinement.

The reminder here is that the American way of life cannot tolerate that sort of tyranny, that to resist any encroachment upon its freedoms or any sign of their impairment, those who enjoy them must ever be on their guard not only with respect to the dangers looming from without but also to those which may arise from within.

Where the Strike Blame Rests

AS heretofore pointed out in these columns, the real root and cause of the recurring strikes in industries essential to national defense lie in the New Deal's own policies, or, rather, in its lack of any consistent labor policy.

From the start of the defense program, the administration has been afraid to meet the strike issue squarely. It has temporized, it has pleaded, but it has refused to develop a clean-cut, understandable labor policy.

Why should anyone wonder, then, that the situation frequently has got out of hand? Labor has had the green light for so many years that it is entirely natural for it to forget there may be such a thing as a red stop light. Labor has been told that "social gains" under the New Deal must not be sacrificed even for national defense.

The greatest "social gain" which labor has achieved under the New Deal has been the right continually to grow in power and influence over an administration dependent on its votes. Why should labor be expected to stand still now, when it has been told in so many words that it need sacrifice nothing during the present emergency?

Blame for labor difficulties cannot fairly be placed on labor itself. It is being simply human. Real blame belongs squarely on the wriggling shoulders of the New Dealers who managed to avoid a real showdown until the last minute. But they cannot wriggle forever.

An Important Undertaking

FOR THE FIRST TIME the ranking members of both parties of the congressional committee on appropriations and taxation have been brought together in one official group for the purpose of determining where federal expenditures can be reduced.

This resulted from the Byrd economy amendment attached to the 1941 Revenue bill. Its author, Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, has been designated chairman of the new group, which also includes Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Budget Director Smith. Their objective is to reduce by at least one billion dollars or more federal non-defense spending.

No more important project has been launched in Washington in a year or more. Every American must fervently pray that this committee gets going and achieves its objective. For, as Byrd said at the first meeting of the group, "our financial security is just as important to our democracy as our defense security."

Some football writers grow so lyrical over each Saturday's titanic struggle they make that business over in Europe seem a marble game between two kids named Adolf and Joe.

The Way Husbands Are

Husbands are people who aren't much help to their wives. . . . They have plenty of ideas but rarely at the right instant.

For example, when guests are coming to dinner a wife never learns that it is useless to ask him: "What shall we have?" But she almost always asks him and he thinks a little and then says: "Well, we'll have a salad and a meat order and a good dessert," but he doesn't say what kind of meat or dessert. If pressed he'll suggest chops or meat balls or corn on the cob or something else that no housewife ever thinks of serving to guests. . . . And having made these suggestions he retires into himself and thinks he has been a great help to his wife.

Or when she asks, "Whom shall we invite?" he's just as helpless. He rarely seems to understand that choosing your guests is also an art. His idea is to invite a lot of people and then circulate around amongst them and make them feel at home. . . . He's blind to all those little nuances, shades and undercurrents that make or mar a party—and superbly self-confident about his ability to smooth everything over and make everybody feel at home. . . . And after everybody's gone home, he'll smile triumphantly and say, "Let's do this again soon!"

A husband is rarely helpful before a holiday or a birthday. He thinks it a simple matter to go shopping and see something and buy it and give it to somebody, and he's proud of his ability to select the right thing. . . . But when the wife asks for advice, he hems and haws and makes some suggestion that is siller than a powderpuff in a snowstorm. And having done his share, he throws up his hands and tells her to use her own judgment.

I could go further and say much more, out of my own experience, but this ought to be enough to show you how wonderful women are and what strange creatures men are at times—and why women wonder how men ever get as far as they do in this world—being so illogical and uncomprehending and childlike.

P. S.: As for me, I think chops are all right to serve and a lot of people together do make a nice party and a pair of stockings is always an acceptable gift.

Expense Cutting Is a Tough Job For Committee

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Congress's special "committee to investigate federal expenditures" has a hard job ahead of it. Its stunt is to determine what reductions can be made. Of course all the cuts it recommends will be in non-defense items.

That defense spending will bulge is a foregone conclusion. That's why non-defense costs so urgently need to be drastically pared down in next year's budget, to be submitted to the legislators in January. Otherwise it's foreseen that the taxpayers' backs will break.

That there's a tremendous public demand for economy there's no question. The difficulty is that each group of beneficiaries of their particular taxation item want reductions made at all the other groups' expense, but not at their own. Contrary to most of 'em want for their own especial selves, increases.

Up and Down
The committee's problem is to hit on a plan for granting larger individual allowances all around, at the same time trimming down the total. It's headed by Senator Harry Byrd.

Naturally included in the body of a dozen investigators are Chairman Walter F. George and Robert L. Doughton, respectively, of the Senate Finance and Representatives Ways and Means committees. A few Republicans are in the bunch, too, among them Representative Allen T. Treadway, who was Ways and Means chairman when the G. O. P. was in power. Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau and Budget Director Harold D. Smith are on the list, also, but they're ex-officio. It's essentially a congressional committee. Morgenthau and Smith are needed, though, as advisers.

The pair last referred to aren't on such a hot spot. As appointed executives, they can advise as they like, and to heck with the voters, however, with future election days to think about, are starting in on a dozen bad headaches.

Morgenthau Says Billion
Secretary Morgenthau already has declared for at least $1,000,000,000 cut. That much is "safe," he says. The budget bureau's submitted a schedule showing how $2,000,000,000 can be saved, though possibly not safely.

Some of us oldsters can remember the screech that went up when our national expenditures first reached the $1,000,000,000 mark annually. It was in Tom Reed's day as the representatives' speaker. He pooh-poohed the squawk, remarking, "A billion's nothing to holler about. This is a $1,000,000,000 country." Nevertheless a lot of people yelled that it was awful.

Now $1,000,000,000 a mere bag-o-shells, simply as an economy. What'll the cuts be made in? Secretary Morgenthau suggested less aid to agriculture, the Civilian Conservation Corps, the National Youth Administration and non-defense public work.

Other Hints
The budget bureau likewise hints at a trimming of appropriations for support of the government's numerous civil departments, but there doesn't seem to be much prospect of it. At present they're all expanding.

Now what'll agriculture say if it's retrenched on? And how about veterans' pensions and benefits?—which the bureau mentions as an item susceptible to a $12,000,000 to $14,000,000 reduction. Secretary Morgenthau undoubtedly said a mouthful when he warned that individuals as well as the government are going to be pinched at the rate at which we're traveling in the direction of defense and lease-lending.

"We simply can't carry on business and government as usual," he told the congressional investigators, "and still take adequate care of our defense needs. It would be a tragic error to assume that we can continue to expand our defense production on a colossal scale and go on in our usual way, whether as a government—OR AS INDIVIDUALS."

It's the widespread consensus among income taxpayers that they'll realize the truth of this when they make out their returns next March. They won't need to be told then that they'd better economize. They'll know that they have GOT to. Of course, by that time, in spite of Price Fixer Leon Henderson, their living costs will be skyrocketing furiously, also, as they already have begun doing.

Incidentally, besides Uncle Sam's levies, city, county and state taxes are going on the rampage very rapidly. They always follow the federal government's example. And, as Commodore Perry said, "We haven't begun to fight yet."

THE TAIL OF THE KITE

Equal Access to Raw Materials Is Held Unnecessary as a Condition of Peace

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—There were three things that Solomon could not understand and three million times three million that I can't.

Among these are the arguments of some of my columnists that it was lack of peace-time access to the world's raw materials that caused the war, that post-war peace depends on giving all nations equal access to such raw materials and that, among many other things that we must do to reconstruct the world, after we have financed the winning of the war, is to insure this universal access of all nations to raw materials.

When in peace time there was any lack of copper, rubber, steel and oil? It is true that tariff systems, wailing off world commerce into watertight trade compartments, had much to do with the dislocation of free economic intercourse. But these were restrictions on imports—not on exports—and we were one of the greatest offenders of the lot.

Restriction Attempted
It is true also that in some important commodities—at one time or another, rubber, tin and farm products—attempts were made either nationally or internationally to restrict production. This was done in every case to maintain high prices, and in farm products, again we were the worst offenders and we did it by governmental action.

In other products, about which the greatest howl now rises—tin, rubber, copper and some chemicals—it was done by private individuals or corporations operating through cartels and other trade agreements.

In many cases these capitalists were British, Dutch, American, French and even German. Generally speaking, they held up everybody, their own nationals as well as the rest of the world. They were just trying to keep prices up against seasonal and other gluts. Frequently their efforts did their own countries more harm than good.

Explanation Wanted
Regardless of this, just how we are going to move in at the conclusion of this war, assuming complete victory, and restrain commercial individual practices as old as Tyre and Sidon is something I would like to have explained.

The truth of the matter is that the fight for access to raw materials is not for the purposes of peace but for those of war. Nations, including Germany, have had free peace-time access to the vast general expanse of raw materials as long as they had the money to pay for them. They always will have this access because the raw materials nations produce to sell and not to hoard. Customers are not turned away because of the shape of their heads.

But in war, all this changes. Raw materials are war material. The coveted object of Britain and of us who echo her policy is to dominate the seas against any other combination of powers whatever. That does and could have only one object. It is to withhold strategic war materials from any potential enemy. Would we change that purpose?

Sluggard Suspected
In the light of these things I believe are fair statements or even understatement of the controlling fact, this stuff about assuring equal access to all nations to the world's supplies of raw materials seems to be just a little bit more of the same sort of ill-informed or actually hypocritical war-sloganeering of the present unfortunate epoch.

We are going into this war not for any such purposes, but for two other purposes and only two: (1) To keep any other nations from imposing their ideas and systems upon the world—including us; (2) To impose our own instead.

Mr. Ickes Loses Again

If you have tears, let them run down Mr. Ickes. Among many other things, he has long wanted the city of San Francisco to stop letting privately-owned Pacific Gas and Electric Company distribute its Hetch-Hetchy power. He contrived a court case with the result that the city was ordered by Ickes to hold an election on the issue. All city officials were required by Ickes to work for Ickes and Mr. Ickes was to be the arbiter of their enthusiasm. Radio publicity was required and he was to be the judge of whether it was sufficiently ardent.

The election was held. Mr. Ickes lost. This was the ninth time the city has rejected the Ickes idea in one form or another.

Possibly the main reason he cannot win is the city leaves the power to P. G. and E. and then fixes the rate the consumers shall be charged. But another reason no doubt is that between 40,000 and 50,000 citizens in Frisco owned preferred stock in the company.

War Sentiment Changes
Reports of two senators, indicating a change of sentiment back home towards the war, has had a profound effect in the cloakrooms of California's Democratic Senator Downey says a personal inspection of his state indicates that people there are ready for war and expect it. Toward Herring feels how destroyer sinkings have inspired new antagonism against the Nazis where he lives.

But Senator Tait's opposition mail has risen from seventy to 300 letters in the past week. This does not yet compare with the flood of literal opposition to previous war fights, which averaged two or three times as large.

Effective Remedy
A Washington Post reporter called Iconoclastic Isolationist Senator Bennett Clark at 2 a. m. to ask if such and such were true about the Neutrality fight. Senator Clark avoided it but Mrs. Clark attempted to answer the question. Next night at 2 a. m. Clark called Post Publisher Eugene Meyer to ask if it was true his reporters were calling senators at such an hour. Without waiting for an answer Clark said he would hereafter call Meyer personally at any hour that one of Meyer's reporters attempted to disturb his slumbers. That ended communications between the Post and Clark.

Too Many Murders

From the Parkersburg, W. Va., Sentinel

It is difficult to believe that there were 96 murders in West Virginia during the first nine months of this year. We get that information from a statement by Superintendent John W. Bosworth of the department of public safety who pointed out that most murders result from trivial arguments and quarrels. He has checked the criminal records to prove his assertion. It seems that jealousy is an outstanding cause for taking another person's life in this state. It was the cause of 14 murders thus far this year.

Prolonged feelings of hatred or grudges figured in seven killings while six capital crimes resulted from lovers' quarrels. Twelve wives murdered their husbands and eight husbands killed their wives. Argument over house rent caused one capital crime and one man shot another to death in an argument over a labor union. Dispute over Biblical quotations caused one killing. Race prejudice resulted in one murder.

Refusal to pay for drinks, arguments in card games, theft of chickens and similar petty disagreements were the causes of crimes in which lives were taken. There were other numerous petty cases which resulted in murder which would be laughable were it not so serious and appalling. Thirty persons are now awaiting trial for murder in this state. Too bad folk cannot control their feelings.

Il Duce May Be Slipping

According to Dorothy Marnell, native-born American girl just back from several years in Italy, where she was a member of the Milan Opera Company, the Italian people have no hate for the United States and are praying for peace. The dictators may resent American aid to Britain and Russia, she says, but they don't reflect the true sentiment of the people.

Miss Marnell, born in Dunbar and known in Connellsville, is a leading coloratura soprano. She returned to America because the war curtailed her career in Italy. Relatives here expect her to pay a visit in the near future.

The young singer says that although food is rationed to Italians, and the prices high, that it is plentiful enough and that no one was suffering from a lack of it in the Milan area while she and her mother were there. Most interesting, however, was her reference to the attitude of the Italian and his lack of resentment against United States aid to England. That might easily mean the Italians are tired of their loud-voiced dictator, who has been little more than a pawn in the hands of Hitler and are secretly hoping an Allied victory will give them new leadership.

Nazis Use Pack Within Wide "V" In Water Blitz

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Of all the fanciful tales of Nazi ingenuity, the prevalent one that their submarines sink up behind American destroyers from the rear and hit amid ship, requires the most imagination. Hitler must have excelled the prowess of Bob Hope's girlfriend, whose slightly askew front tooth enabled her to spit a curve. The official impression here is that the possibility of the Nazis throwing torpedoes is about as nebulous as Mr. Hope's G. F.

The new Nazi water blitz technique is, in reality, founded upon the principle of echelon diving formations. The German under-sea boats form in convoy areas along the lines of a "V" but with a center angle spread much wider than the alphabet designates. Stationed ten miles or more apart back along the elbows of the spread "V" they are able to cover a very large area. They vary the distance separating each boat, from three or four up to fifteen miles, depending on visibility.

Within this thinly manned angle, they have put into operation what they call a "pack." This is a flying formation of generally about six subs, stationed only about 200 or 300 yards apart. The pack can get in for the kill wherever the convoys show. Two or three of these Nazi water wedges (and flying packs) have been stationed the last few weeks across the bottle neck of the Atlantic, southwest of Iceland, where all the troubles of the destroyers have occurred.

British Become Careless
The only logical immediate concern is directed toward increasing destroyer protection for the convoys. The British have been careless since sinkings fell in August and September. They have succumbed to the temptation to hurry vessels over by a direct route and without adequate destroyer protection. Also there have been leaks on the routes of convoys, which apparently only could have come from a source in the admiralty in London, through which the routes are determined.

The success of our convoy policy may be measured technically by the amount of goods delivered in Iceland and London (not on sinkings). That is the way the administration may measure it. But actually this government realizes the recent loss of lives and ships requires hurried reformation of our strategy in the Battle of the Atlantic.

A Maid in Manhattan

by ALLEN EPPES

THE MOONLIGHT made a silver ribbon of the road that dipped and curved in and out among the low green hills, the spicy fragrance of long leaf pines filled the air, from a shadowy patch of woods a whippoorwill called plaintively to its mate—and Fred Mosher was about to propose to Susan Farmer.

Susan, sitting beside Fred, in his smart new roadster, knew what was coming. She could always tell when Fred was on the verge of proposing. Not that she was psychic, or that she was possessed of an extraordinary amount of feminine intuition. It was the look on Fred's handsome face. She smiled to herself as she thought came to her that instead of wearing his heart upon his sleeve like a lot of men, Fred wore his upon his countenance.

Presently he reached forward and turned the dial of the radio until he found some soft dance music.

"Please don't do it, Fred," Susan said.

"Don't do what?" said Fred, surprised.

"Don't ask me to marry you."

"Well, I'll be darned!" Fred exclaimed, slowing down the car.

"How did you know that was what I was going to do?"

"I'm clever that way," Susan said. Then very gently: "Fred, you've proposed to me so many times that I have learned to recognize the symptoms."

"I don't know that I like the word 'symptoms,'" said Fred. "It's a heck of a word to use to a man who wants to talk about love and marriage."

"I'm sorry, Fred. I didn't mean to be flippant." Susan placed her hand lightly over Fred's, where it rested upon the steering wheel.

"I've told you again and again that I love a duty to my Aunt Alice."

"Oh, THAT," said Fred.

"Yes, that," said Susan. "An obligation is important to me, whether it is to you or not."

"I understand perfectly how you feel about your Aunt Alice," said Fred. "But I do think you ought to give a thought to the man who's been loving you ever since you were knee-high to a grasshopper."

"I know, Fred," Susan said. "And I AM grateful to you for your devotion, but you see, I—"

"I've never looked at another girl," Fred went on. "That is, not seriously."

Susan smiled.

"I'm awfully glad you decided to qualify your statement," she said.

"I've never thought of my future without seeing you sharing it," Fred continued. "And now that you've been out of college nearly two years, and are—"

"On the verge of becoming an old maid?"

"I wasn't going to say that at all. What I mean is that you've got no special training, no real means of making a living. So it seems to me that you ought to—"

"Ought to marry you," Susan said, and he supported the rest of my life in a manner to which I am NOT accustomed. Is that what you mean, Fred?"

"No, it's not."

"It sounded that way to me."

"You certainly are one for interrupting," Fred said. "And for putting the wrong construction on what a man's trying to say to you."

"But I'm NOT one to marry in order to have an easy time of it," said Susan. "Aunt Alice has the farm, and she has always believed it could be made to pay. I agree with her, and I'm going to try to help her realize her dream of making the Farmer plantation what it was years ago."

"I see," said Fred. "Does that mean that you and Miss Alice Farmer are going out and toil among the corn and the cotton?"

"We might—if necessary."

"Nonsense! Don't make me laugh."

"Other women have accomplished bigger things."

"Yes, in books."

"After all, we do come from a long line of farmers—Aunt Alice and I. My father's ancestors were farmers and also first settlers here in Ardendale county—or have you forgotten all about that?"

"No, I haven't forgotten," said Fred somewhat wearily. "You won't let me." He laughed mirthlessly. "Steven Farmer, graduate of a college where she was taught how to enter a room without falling over the furniture, how to balance a teacup without spilling tea on her neighbor, and—"

"Yes?" said Susan. "Go on."

"And how to speak four languages," said Fred. "Which does her a lot of good, with the map of Europe changing every 48 hours."

"Anything else?"

"Yes. That same college forgot to teach you a cock-eyed thing about farming."

"Maybe I should have gone to an agricultural college," Susan said.

"That wouldn't have been a bad idea—considering."

"But it so happens," said Susan, "that Aunt Alice had her heart set on my attending HER Alma Mater. She said that if she'd ever had a daughter of her own, she would have gone there. So she insisted upon sending me instead."

"And now," said Fred, "I suppose you show her how gracefully you can enter a room, and balance a teacup, and rattle off French phrases—to prove that her dear old Alma Mater did her work, and did it well."

"Very funny," said Susan. "Very, very funny. But I'm not amused."

"She found a cigarette and lit it. 'I am quite capable of learning from experience—farming or anything else. Besides, we can hire a man to act as overseer.'"

"What will you use for money?" Fred asked.

Susan couldn't reply to that. It was a cruel thing for Fred to say, and yet he was right. Money. Such a necessary thing, no matter what you attempted to do. One always had to have capital. And, alas, cash was indeed a minus quantity where she and her Aunt Alice were concerned. It had been a minus quantity for a long, long time; in fact, ever since she could remember. Even when she was a small child, with her mother dead, and her reckless, good-looking father trying to manage the run-down farm in between periods of drinking to forget his troubles, and riding fast and dangerous horses all over Ardendale county.

"We'll find a way," she said stubbornly, hurriedly shutting out the memory of her father's death, the way he had looked when they found him after his horse had failed to clear a fence.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

What a relief to turn from the headlines that daily greet our weary eyes to the genuine romance of two young lovers.

Across an ocean, strewn with mines, where deadly peril kept pace with the ship, rose with the sun each morning, followed the waves all day and kept close at hand in the dark watches of the night, a young man brought his fiancée a box of violets from Portugal. She was waiting for him on the pier with double weddings, fashioned from her mother's golden circlet.

The unbelievable thing about this voyage of violets on the S. S. Exeter is that the young man, Thomas Yarbrough, belongs to that allegedly most hard-boiled of all the professions—journalism. I take exception to the tag "hard-boiled" as applied to the Fourth Estate. I've known so many newspaper people who've gone without the necessities of life to help some fellow scribble in distress.

Like an Oasis

Mr. Yarbrough had been covering blitzkrieged London for the past two years. His girl, Julia Fisher, of Kansas City, had asked him to bring her violets from Portugal a "must," as newspaper folk call a command. Not to be outdone, there was pretty Miss Fisher waiting for her betrothed on the pier with double wedding rings.

The story of the lover's exchange of violets and wedding rings and the picture of the charming young couple came like an oasis in the midst of war news. And we've got to look sharp not to become sentimental when we think of the depths to which "love" has descended in countries under dictatorial rule. To give one example, an attractive young houseworker is sent to a woman's home to take over and keep the home fires burning until the wife, bearing her sixth child, is again on her feet. The husband is home on furlough, and the wife's raging jealousy is only what's to be expected. Multiply this case, recently published by thousands, and you have a picture of romance as it is practiced in countries under dictators.

Passing Up a Good Man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a man 40 years of age and have been in love with a girl for twelve years. I asked her to marry me a few years ago, but she said she'd let me know in a month, and waiting for her answer was too much for me. I tried to arrange for a transfer to a foreign country, but it didn't go through. When her answer finally came it was "No." I wrote and said if she wanted to cheat herself out of a good husband that was her business.

Of course, I was joking; I didn't want her to know how empty the world became after she refused me. My friendship with her has been the inspiration for every good thing I ever Defense Council in Washington. He spoke of our "unorganized" way of doing things. He wasn't, of course, talking about our marriage methods but of our preparations. For one, I'm grateful that we haven't taken to organized methods in our domestic affairs in this country.

In the United States no marriage portion is required; no down payment, as in Europe, when your daughter weds. Doubtless there is nothing left in the way of cash for marriage portions these days over there, but the system of paying "to get rid of your daughter" is age-old.

Perhaps we're too romantic over here in letting young people choose their own mates and marry without much thought of the morrow. But it's lots better than the grim utility of the totalitarian state.

Husband Falls for Siren

Dear Miss Fairfax:

As a self-supporting girl, my earliest dreams were to have a home of my own. To this end I saved every bit of my salary. At last I met a man who seemed to have this ideal. And though my bank account showed a balance of several hundred dollars more than his, I put it all into the little home I hoped would be a refuge from all of the "slings and arrows" of the business world.

Imagine my disillusionment when, after we were settled in what I hoped to be a Paradise on earth, my husband spent most of his time with a woman old enough to be his mother—and then some! The lady has confessed to 68 years. She persuades him that the poetry he writes, and which isn't accepted, is too good for the magazines to appreciate.

The manuscript readers for magazines, he says, are "unwashed boobies" who've never been able to get anything published of their own. Hence they buy only the old shopworn names.

Whether this is scripts and she makes him peach cobbler with brandy sauce, and he takes most of his meals at her house, which is near ours. I don't know whether to get a divorce or not.

To work in an office from nine five and then come home to the tantrums of a frustrated genius is a pretty tough sentence.

OVERWORKED

I think it's pretty tough for a woman who's put most of her savings in the house of her dreams to discover that her husband files to an aged siren. Consult your Legal Aid Society or your own lawyer.

Husband Keeps Children

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been married for six unhappy years, and have two children. My husband has beaten me so severely that I have been forced to leave him. He has the children and will not even allow me to see them unless I come back to him. But I know I never could endure that. I want to have my children. What should I do?

WRETCHED.

Here's a fine specimen from the Dark Ages. A man who beats his wife and refuses to let her see her children unless she comes back to him.

'Ballad For Americans' Will Be Repeated Here

Cumberland Choral Society Concert Is Enthusiastically Received

An audience of about 500 enthusiastically applauded the Cumberland Choral Society's performance of "Ballad for Americans" at its performance in Allegheny high school auditorium, Wednesday evening.

The soloist, John Baumgartner, helped to create the music history in Cumberland by his fine interpretation of the "American" and the enunciation of both soloist and chorus was crystal clear, making the story intensely and dramatically effective.

So unanimous was the approval and enthusiasm of the audience that "Ballad for Americans" is to be repeated next Monday evening for the "parents night" in Allegheny high school, with Robert Rosamond, well known Cumberland baritone, as soloist. The public is cordially invited to attend this second performance which will be held at 8:30 o'clock.

New Accompanist Used

Jack E. Platt, director of the chorus feels the society is to be commended for a noteworthy performance in spite of the difficulties, of being unable to secure a centrally located rehearsal room and that Miss Althea Birchard, who never had missed a rehearsal as accompanist, was injured in the recent explosion, and it was necessary to secure a new accompanist.

The program opened with three concert classics, "Prayer of Thanksgiving," "Light of Dawning" and "Ah, Moon of My Delight." The second group was designed to recognize contemporary composers. It included "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," "I See Your Face Before Me" and "Summertime." The last two featured John Metzger and Mrs. Blanche Stanton Gunter as soloists and both were very effective.

Following this group Mr. Baumgartner was introduced to the audience in a group of solos, all artistically done and showing that he is a splendid concert artist. It is a tribute to Jack Platt and the Choral Society that a man who has sung under the baton of Stokowski, Toscanini, Bruno Walter and other great conductors should sing under the baton of the local conductor, whose ability as a conductor has become recognized to the extent that a nationally known music magazine recently devoted an entire page to him and the community services given in Cumberland.

Following Mr. Baumgartner, the chorus sang the ever popular Liszt's "Liebestraum" and "The Heavens Are Telling" from "The Creation" of Haydn, which is the oratorio the chorus plans to sing next spring. Both numbers were great favorites with the audience.

Sacred Numbers Used

After a brief intermission a group of sacred numbers, established the group as being capable of executing many types of music. Well, The Bach choral "Commit Thy Ways" was effectively presented as an acappella number, followed by "Beautiful Saviour" with Mary Robb as soloist. This group was completed with the chorus singing "Verdant Meadows," with organ accompaniment, commanded applause even before it was finished.

Then came the high spot of the whole program, when the "Ballad for Americans" was given its local premiere.

Much credit is due Mary Drum Bollini, Read Ferguson and Kathryn Doerner for effective and sympathetic accompaniments, both on the piano and organ.

Once again the Cumberland Choral Society has proven its worth as a community activity that is outstanding and of which the people are proud. The next performance of the group will be December 17, when it will present its annual performance of Handel's "Messiah" with four of the county's finest oratorio soloists as guests of the group.

did, I've tried to forget her by going out with other girls, but it's useless. I still have lots of chances, but love her too much to think of marrying anyone else.

She has not married since then, which has been four years ago. She's as beautiful as the day I met her. I've tried to see her by sending flowers, but without success. Would you advise me to persist? I believe that "faint heart ne'er won fair lady." I love her so much and feel I can make her happy if she'll only let me.

D. H.

If you've tried being openly attentive to some other girl, and this young lady has not fallen for this tried-and-true method, it would seem a wiser course to force yourself to become interested in someone else. So many girls are like this. They pass up late, spend the rest of their lives regretting.

BALTIMORE MAN IS PAROLED; TAKEN TO WESTMINSTER

A 55-year-old Baltimore man who allegedly made a "tour" of several eastern states several years ago, passing worthless checks on the way, is making a return trip yesterday in circuit court.

The defendant, C. L. Lambert, was indicted here several years ago for false pretense in connection with the alleged passing of bad checks, and was brought here for trial last week from the Ohio state penitentiary, where he had served a four-year term on similar charges.

Yesterday, he pleaded guilty to two indictments charging false pretense. Paroled for two years by Associate Judge William A. Huster, he still failed to gain his liberty, for one of the conditions of the parole is that he go with officers to Westminster, where he is also wanted on criminal charges.

The sheriff's office said he was also sought by West Virginia and New Jersey authorities.

Cruiser Becomes Ship of Matrimony

LONDON (P) — An Australian auxiliary cruiser has earned the nickname "H. M. A. S. Honeymoon." The crew are called the "love-at-first-sight boys."

During three calls the cruiser made at British ports at the end of patrols, 110 members of the crew were married. Sixty got married the first time, 20 the second, and 30 the third. "I was conducting marriages for these Australian sailors almost every day," said the registrar at one of the ports. "One morning I married seven of them within an hour or two."

Roosevelt Ready To Proclaim Day Of Thanksgiving

It Will Come on Nov. 20 This Year, but for Last Time

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (P) — President Roosevelt's annual Thanksgiving Day proclamation, expected in a week or so, will designate Thursday, November 20, for this year's observance. But beginning in 1942, the president has stated the traditional fourth Thursday in November will be proclaimed.

The week - earlier observance, adopted to bring about a longer shopping period between Thanksgiving and the Christmas holidays, was found not to have produced anticipated results. The president, therefore, last May announced an end of the new custom adopted three years ago.

Executives of two-thirds of the states and the District of Columbia have indicated their intention of proclaiming the president's November 20 date as their state's Thanksgiving Day this year. In sixteen other states the governors have declared they will stick to the traditional date, which this year is Nov. 27.

States to observe November 20: Alabama, Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisville, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming, and the District of Columbia.

States to observe November 27: Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, and Vermont.

Defeat of

German interests, dominated with local governments, their officials would be hardly more than Quislings.

"Those politicians would be amused at being thought anti-American. In their friendship for this country is the only security they have. They not only admire this country and its people but they look to us at the present time as the only agency in the world that can keep their countries independent. They are strong against any subversive elements."

"This nation can best show its goodneighbor feeling for each of those friendly countries by assisting them to maintain their independence, which means by defeating Hitler's ends. That can't be done by having movie actresses visit Rio or Buenos Aires, but by clearing the extraordinary muddle in Washington and actively prosecuting the present war to a successful end."

Describes Various Attitudes

Listing many of the Latin-American nations one by one and describing their attitude toward the United States, Reed began with Mexico, which he said had very good reason "to actively dislike the predatory northern power."

He cited the campaign against Villa, the Texas situation and also that of California as incidents in the comparatively recent past which might give the Mexicans cause to resent America and Americans.

But, the speaker said, "the American salesmen and businessmen in Mexico find practically no antipathy to them as individuals at present," and the American tourist "might hunt long and hard to find any Mexican with whom they might come in contact who 'hated Americans.'"

"The Mexicans have gotten completely past their dislike of America, and in general didn't have too much dislike for individual Americans at any time."

Turning to Colombia, Reed pointed out this nation, too, has excellent reason to dislike America and Americans in view of the fact that the Panama Canal area "was raped from that country by supporting a revolution in Panama, recognizing a new government there even before the revolutionaries had won anything at all and then being willing to support that revolution with the U. S. Navy."

Have Own Problems

However, "probably not an American that has visited Colombia or resided there has ever had a harsh word or an unpleasant action to report unless he deserved it personally. They like us and admire our country."

"They are far, indeed, from being anti-American. They gladly buy our manufactured merchandise, sell us part or all of their exports."

"They do have their national problems but certainly didn't need any good-neighbor campaigns or good-will visits."

These good-will visits have "caused considerable amusement," Reed continued, but they have had some beneficial effect for the simple reason that most of us like people better as we get to know them better.

Concerning Guatemala, Reed pointed out that although this nation has a large number of German residents who not only conduct wholesale and retail distribution of many kinds, but are also farmer coffee planters whose coffee forms a substantial fraction of the total exports, it is "as friendly to Americans and America as any and gives its cooperation in defense activities willingly."

The U. S. "black list" hits them hard, but "they are far from being pro-German, take their problem as a part of the war and are working on a practical solution."

Discussing Argentina, the speaker noted that most people think of this country "when they think in terms of anti-American spirit manifested."

Argentines Dislike Nazis

To correct that idea, Reed explained that the Argentines are anti-American, they dislike the English still more and dislike the Germans most. In other words, "they are strongly pro-Argentine, which is both natural and laudable. Any activity which affects their interests unfavorably they dislike," he said.

"When they think that the United States government is trying to force or jockey them into doing anything that they don't think wise or advantageous, they actively dislike such pressure. . . . When the political lobby in Washington got Argentine meat imports into the United States stopped flat, not only was the Argentine injured, but also every meat consumer on our Eastern Seaboard. The only benefits were to the Western meat producers, a relatively small group."

"They aren't unfriendly to Americans, but we would agree with them that some of the actions taken by our own government have been ill-considered and were decidedly unfriendly to them."

Local Man Is Hurt in Fall

George L. Williamson, 26, of 300 Columbia street, received dispensary treatment in Allegheny hospital yesterday morning at 11:45 o'clock, for severe lacerations of the left wrist, suffered when he fell down the steps of the Textile Union of America hall, 34 North Mechanic street.

Attaches were told the cuts were suffered when, falling to the bottom of the stairs, Williamson's arm broke the glass in the front door of the building.

Chillon, castle in Switzerland once used as a prison by the dukes of Savoy, was made famous by Byron's poem, "The Prisoner of Chillon."

Insurance

clined to pay the claim of the estate, and the case went to trial. Beachy was called as a witness for the plaintiff against himself and, contradicting his previous statements, declared that he knew the brakes were bad, that the truck on a previous occasion had run away and almost crushed him.

Yesterday, Beachy, an evasive witness, was pressed to explain why he had not told the insurance adjuster this fact. He replied only that he "forgot" it then, but "it came to me" months later, after suit was filed.

Defense counsel made much of the fact that although Beachy himself was supposedly nearly killed under similar circumstances only two weeks before his uncle was killed, he "forgot" this fact until his mother-in-law, as administrator of the Broadwater estate, sued him for damages.

Policy Terms Stressed

Beachy's failure to "co-operate" with the company by telling one story to the insurance adjuster and another to a jury was branded as a breach of his insurance contract, releasing the firm from liability. Defense counsel exhibited the terms of the policy calling for such "co-operation" on the part of the insured in defending suits and cited another provision stating that "no action shall lie against the company unless, as a condition precedent thereto, the insured shall have fully complied with all the terms of this policy."

The $349.10 judgment against the copy represented the original judgment against Beachy, plus interest and court costs.

It was indicated that a new trial will be sought by the company, with the possibility that the case may go to the court of appeals for final determination.

Edward J. Ryan was attorney for the plaintiff, while William A. Gunter and Elmer B. Gower were counsel for the insurance company.

Evening Recreational Program Is Organized At Carver High School

An evening recreational program for Carver high school, Frederick street, was organized last evening with the election of Miss Hazel Stephens as chairman; Mrs. Bernard Smith, secretary, and John Womack, treasurer, at a meeting held in the school.

Membership cards will be sold and distributed among adults by committee members and the evening programs will be devoted to table tennis, basketball, badminton, checkers, dominoes and other games. Children of school age will receive membership cards free of charge and will attend on special nights devoted to them.

It is planned to start the program Thursday, November 13.

Organizers hope that the program will serve the purpose of furnishing recreation for colored adults and children until such a time that a large recreation center is established here. The local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People already has inaugurated a campaign to raise funds for the establishment of such a project.

sent by about 300 pupils. Elementary school pupils from the fifth grade up will account for at least another 1,000, it was indicated.

All three high schools will also be represented by musical units.

Superintendent Kopp and the school principals conferred at length concerning the manifold problems presented by the plan, but agreed wholeheartedly that it was eminently fitting that youths enjoying the educational benefits of American democracy should join in a community celebration to signalize national unity at this time of crisis.

The school officials expressed the hope that parents of the pupils would co-operate in making the turnout a record one.

It is important, all agreed, that the demonstration be participated in by every pupil who can possibly do so, and principals and teachers are expected to join in the parade, it was indicated.

Route of the parade has not yet been announced, but units will form at 2:30 p. m. and march promptly at 3 p. m.

The parade is one in a series of events planned for the day by Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 of the American Legion.

Idea That Many Diseases Can Be Traced to Weather Isn't New One

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
In a large hospital well-known to me, a few summers ago, the surgical staff had to consider seriously whether they would stop all surgical operations for awhile. There had been an epidemic of post-operative fatalities due to embolism of the lungs. I say "epidemic" merely in the sense that these accidents occurred in rapid succession in groups. Epidemic implies cross infection, but pulmonary embolism is not due to infection that could be caught from patient to patient. But there had been a long spell of dry, hot weather and low barometric pressure, and the idea was suggested that these conditions were due to the weather.

It seemed a queer thing to blame on the weather; it's hard to imagine a connection, but the idea is not a new one. It goes back to Hippocrates, the father of medicine, who traced many diseases to climatic and weather conditions.

Climatology
There is no doubt that the subject has been neglected in modern medicine, although we are beginning to have a revival in such works as those of Ellsworth Huntington—"Civilization, Disease and Weather"; C. A. Mills—"Medical Climatology"; and the monumental volumes of Petersen "The Patient and the Weather."

These researches have brought out some arresting things. There is a seasonal tide in the vitality of parents, Huntington says, and in May and June, the apparently instinctive time for marriage, this tide is at its height. Babies born in March and February will get the best possible start in life, as proved by statistics. Huntington's and Petersen's studies show that in groups of noted people over the earth, an undue proportion of them have been conceived at the time of greatest parental vigor.

As an illustration of the influence of climate on fertility, in Peru the cows graze in the mountain uplands, but they can't be made to conceive there. In order to have calves, they must come down to nearly sea level.

Perhaps we would not want to go as far as Professor C. A. Mills in his idea of the influence of climate on national vigor, but the theory is thought-provoking. He says in the Dark Ages the climate of the temperate zone was much warmer, and humans were smaller, less vigorous. With colder weather a more vigorous race came along. Since 1929 world weather is getting warmer, we will have a smaller, less vigorous race—according to Dr. Mills.

doctor unless you think it important."

Answer: If there is any time in your life when you need medical advice, this is it. The largest number of cases of lumps in the breast at this age are due to innocent cysts or inflammation which need little treatment and get well by themselves. But it may be a cancer. If there is anything suspicious about the lump, the doctor can remove a small piece under local anesthetic without scarring and submit it to a pathologist for microscopic examination and final diagnosis.

He who every morning plans the transactions of the day, and follows out that plan, carries a thread that will guide him through the labyrinth of the most busy life. The orderly arrangement of his time is like a ray of light which darts itself through all his occupations. But where no plan is laid, where the disposal of time is surrendered merely to the chance of incidents, all things lie huddled together in one chaos, which admits of neither distribution nor review.—HUGO.

Railroad Strike Threat Is Heard From Key Points

Both Brotherhoods and Carriers Disappointed
with Board's Plans

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—The threat of a railroad strike has grown more serious despite a presidential board's recommendation that 1,250,000 employees of the nation's carriers be granted temporary wage increases and that 900,000 of them be given vacations with pay.

Chiefs of five operating brotherhoods stated at Chicago that the recommendations, falling short of demands, were "most disappointing" and said they could not recommend them to the rank and file of union membership. However, no strike can be started for thirty days, under the law.

Carriers Disappointed
Although railroad bonds advanced on the New York market, spokesmen for carriers also expressed disappointment at the board's recommendations. The statement, issued by committees of eastern, western and southern lines, said the burden would be too great.

The fact-finding board which was commissioned by President Roosevelt to look into the dispute said the increases and vacations would raise operating costs about $270,000,000 a year. They were recommended, the board added, on the assumption that the roads could obtain permission to increase their freight and passenger rates to meet the added expense. Average rate increases of about five per cent would cover the entire increased cost, the board estimated.

The recommendations fell far short of the demands of the five operating brotherhoods, with their 350,000 members, and the fourteen non-operating unions, numbering about 900,000 members.

The operating organizations had asked wage increases of about thirty per cent from an estimated present minimum of $5.06 a day. The board recommended increases of seven and one-half per cent.

The non-operating groups wanted thirty to forty cents an hour more than the thirty-five to eighty-five cents an hour they now receive. The board suggested an additional nine cents an hour, or an average increase of thirteen and one-half per cent.

The board also proposed that the 40,000 or more employees of the Railway Express Company be granted increases of seven and one-half cents an hour over unannounced present scales.

All wage recommendation as proposed by the board would be effective as of Sept. 1, 1941, and terminate automatically on Dec. 31, 1942, unless an extension was mutually agreed upon. This was suggested, the board said, because the many uncertainties besetting any analysis of the economy of this country for the existing national emergency make it unwise to recommend changes in basic wage rates at this time except for certain minimum rates which the board suggested.

It was suggested that the wage structure of the railroads be examined about Dec. 31, 1942, "in light of existing economic conditions" of the industry and the country.

The board also recommended:

- Suggestions by Board
1. One-week vacations, effective Jan. 1, 1942, for the employee-members of the fourteen non-operating unions. These include such workers as machinists, boilermakers, clerks, freight handlers and maintenance of way employees.
  2. A permanent basic minimum wage of forty cents an hour for employees of short-line roads, and a permanent basic minimum wage of forty-five cents an hour for employees of class A roads and the Railway Express Agency.
  3. That a dispute between the unions and the roads over working rules be re-submitted for further consideration under the Railway Labor Act. This dispute, the board said, lends itself to a settlement by negotiation.

tiation, mediation, arbitration or hearings before a special emergency board, and should not be settled by "economic force."

The five members of the board presented their report in person to the president. They are: Chairman Wayne L. Morse, dean of law at the University of Oregon; Thomas R. Powell, Harvard law professor; James C. Bonbright, of Columbia University; Joseph H. Willis, of the Rockefeller Foundation, New York; and Huston Thompson, Washington attorney.

11 Slot Machines Are Confiscated In Legion Home

Mineral Sheriff Arrests Three at Keyser American Legion Club

KEYSER, W. Va., Nov. 6.—Eleven slot machines were confiscated and three persons arrested at the American Legion Club here today by representatives of the Mineral county sheriff's office.

Sheriff P. G. Davis and Deputy Sheriff Glenn "Tink" Smith late this morning visited the Legion club rooms on the corner of Main and Mozzelle streets to serve a capias on Ernest Mackley, indicted jointly with Charles Briley as manager of the club on charges of exhibiting seven slot machines at the last session of the Mineral county grand jury.

While serving the capias, the officers witnessed the slot machines in operation. Prosecuting Attorney E. Hodgson was notified, and warrants were issued for the arrest of Mackley, James Portney and Mary Jenkins, who were working at the time in the club rooms. The eleven machines, taking coins ranging from pennies to quarters, were confiscated and the three persons arrested. They will be given a preliminary hearing before a Justice of the Peace tomorrow.

Mackley was taken before Judge Robert McV. Drane in circuit court, or the capias was released when he produced a certificate stating he would soon enter a hospital for medical treatment. His and Briley's trial has been set for the next term of court, Briley at present is visiting in Alabama.

McKee Awarded $369.51

In the final trial at this term of Mineral county circuit court, a jury this morning returned a verdict for the plaintiff, awarding him $369.51 of the $15,000 he asked.

The case was that of Edward McKee, Keyser bus driver and partner-owner of a taxicab company, versus John Williams, Romney, owner of the Potomac Distributing company. McKee, represented by Attorneys R. A. Welch and Emory L. Tyler, claimed permanent disability resulting from a spinal injury received when a truck owned by Williams and driven by W. F. Shank backed into him January 15, 1940, as he was putting anti-freeze solution in a car owned by Mac's Taxi company, in which he is interested.

Attorneys N. Howard Rogers and E. A. See, representing the defense, contended that McKee's injuries do not render him permanently disabled, and that the accident was due to contributory negligence on his part.

Tyler moved that the court set aside the verdict and order a new trial when the jurors announced their decision at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

The formal motion is scheduled to be made tomorrow. Judge Robert McV. Drane today refused to designate what action he would take at that time. Some observers expressed doubt that See would stick to the stand he made today.

Following the conclusion of the McKee-Williams case, Judge Drane dismissed the jury. The court will remain in session, but will hear only chancery and divorce cases.

Grand Jury Will Consider Stevey Case Today

Petit Jury Panel Will Be Recalled in Case of Indictment

OAKLAND, Nov. 6.—The grand jury for the September term of the circuit court is being recalled to court to consider the case of Mrs. Beulah Stevey, 24, who Neil C. Fraley, State's Attorney, said had confessed to the murder of her husband October 23.

Mrs. Stevey, through her attorney, waived a preliminary hearing and has been held without bail in the county jail since she was brought in for questioning a few hours after her husband died.

Her husband, Jacob Stevey, died in Miners' hospital, Frostburg, as the result of a gunshot wound in his left temple. The man was shot while lying across a bed in the couple's home west of Grantsville, and his wife told officers that he had committed suicide.

She later confessed. Wounds on the left shoulder and right hand led officers to believe that the wound could not have been self-inflicted.

Two of Mrs. Stevey's children have been taken to Swanton where they are being cared for by Mrs. Stevey's sister, Mrs. Paugh. They are Emma Virginia, 6, and Leroy William, 4. Another son, Ronald Lee, about 2, remains with his mother. All three had been placed in jail with their mother for a few days.

In the event an indictment is returned by the grand jury the petit jury panel for the September term will be recalled to try the case the latter part of November or early in December, according to Neil C. Fraley, State's Attorney.

Pinzel explained that several new streams had been opened into the town cisterns and one new cistern has been installed for the Calla Hill district.

Increasing Farm Accidents Attributed to Machine Age

Above—When the horses start, the knife-sharp blades of the disc begin to turn. Agricultural implements are the leading farm accident hazard. Right—Cigarettes and gasoline are noted for their teamwork in causing serious injury and costly fires.

Farmer Is Urged By Red Cross to Check Accident Hazards

Washington, D. C.—Mechanization of the American farm is accounting for a mounting accident fatality toll, the Red Cross pointed out in an appeal for farm owners to participate in its year-round Home and Farm Accident Prevention drive beginning the last week of October.

Of the 4,500 farm workers killed by accidents last year, approximately 23 per cent were due to carelessness and the use of faulty implements, the Red Cross said. Ill-tempered animals, vehicles, excessive heat and falls led other farm accident causes in that order.

To the farmer, the Red Cross urges a close check-up for the removal of accident hazards. Machinery, tools and other equipment should be examined periodically and kept in good repair. Tools and implements should be kept in regular places, out of the farm yard or where they may cause a serious fall. Bulls, boars and other dangerous animals should be kept in secure pens.

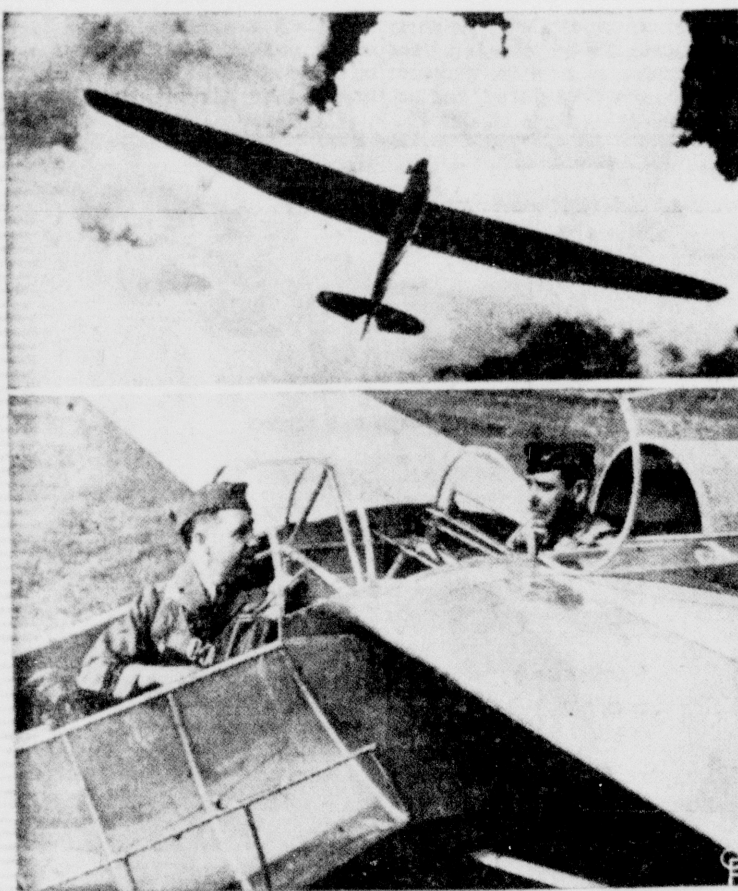

Approximately 50 injuries of varying degree occur for every farm accident fatality—a nation-wide total of some 225,000 for last year, the Red Cross appeal for greater safety pointed out.

To launch this year's Accident Prevention program the Red Cross again will distribute 10,000,000 home and farm "check lists." By following the suggestions urban householders can systematically check the home for accident hazards. A similar check-up is outlined for the removal of hazards on the farm.

Herman Lambert, Parsons, Marries Montrose Girl

Ceremony Is Performed in Methodist Church Parsonage

PARSONS, W. Va., Nov. 6 (AP) — Mrs. Howard Huff of Montrose announced the marriage of their daughter, Elaine Yvonne, to Herman Donald Lambert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lambert of Parsons, on November 1.

The single ring ceremony was performed in the parsonage of the Methodist church at Oakland, with the Rev. Minor Sprague, pastor of the church, officiating.

The bride was attired in a soldier blue street length ensemble and wore a shoulder corsage of rose buds. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ryan of Elkins.

The bride was graduated from Elkins high school in the class of 1938 and has been employed by the G. C. Murphy Company for the past year.

Mr. Lambert was graduated from Parsons high school and attended Wesleyan college, Buckhannon. He is at present employed by the Brenkman Distributing Company of Parsons. They will reside at Parsons.

Celebrate Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. James Little of Parsons were honored by their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Smith in Elkins Sunday observing their twenty-ninth anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Little were married in Elkins Presbyterian church on November 2, 1912, with the late Dr. Frederick Barron officiating. Mrs. Guy Squires of Parsons was an attendant at the wedding twenty-nine years ago. Mrs. Little was the former Pauline Orr of Elkins, and Mr. Little is a retired master mechanic for the Western Maryland railroad, and now operates a tourist home, "The Gables," in Parsons and runs a large chicken farm. Others attending the dinner were two daughters, Miss Anna Jean Little of Washington, D. C., and Miss Judy Little of Parsons. Joe Gilmore of Parsons also attended the dinner.

Fire Destroys Barn

The Parsons Volunteer Fire Department answered a call Monday evening at 5 p. m. when a Mitchell child accidentally tossed a lighted match in the hay-filled barn belonging to his father, Jesse Mitchell, of Hendricks. The barn was completely destroyed. Several small chickens were also destroyed. The total loss was valued at $250.

As the fire department was ready to leave they were called across the street to the home of A. K. Hawthay where a coal stove had exploded, blowing all stove pipes and flue stops out. The interior of the house was badly damaged with soot but no fire damage was done.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

TWO GREAT EXTREMES

AMONG the styles of play of a suit contract, there are two absolute extremes. One of these consists of leading trumps until nobody has any more. The other is featured by the fact that the declarer never makes a trump lead throughout the entire hand, because he is trying to score his trumps separately by ruffing, never having two trumps on the same trick. It is rare that a traveling kibitzer has a chance to see both styles used on the same deal, which gets played in one suit by one pair, and in another suit by the opposing pair at a different table.

Do!

Instead of doubling, one West player made a final bid of 4-Spades, and carried through his contract by most elementary play through pretty fair luck in finding no important pitfalls. North led the diamond K, which was ruffed with the spade 8. The spade A, Q and J came next, the latter overtaken by the K and the 10 setting North's last trump.

To make the needed ten tricks, West pressed his luck plenty. The heart Q went through when South netted $50 at the spaghetti supper they served at the high school on Monday evening. The dinner was prepared by Miss Paige DiBacco, music instructor of Parsons high school, and her family, Mrs. DiBacco, Mrs. C. Quattro, Mrs. Benito Tonelli, Mrs. Frank Quattro and Mrs. Tom Hassel of Thomas, and served by the band boys.

The Parsons Kiwanis club was served in the library of the school and held their meeting there following the dinner. Ellis J. VonHaven presided at the round table discussion pertaining to the new city building which is being constructed in Parsons. Visitors for the meeting were H. D. Grimes, Elkins; Mrs. J. Kenton Lambert, Mrs. Herman Lambert, Miss Jean Marsh and Miss Arlene Hebb.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Nunzio Ciarsellino of Douglas announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth Jumbo, to Paul Gennantonio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Gennantonio, Sr., of Thomas.

The wedding will be solemnized on November 22 at the St. Thomas Catholic church in Thomas with the Rev. Francis Spiller officiating at the single-ring ceremony.

The bride-elect has chosen Miss Catherine Mona of Thomas as her maid-of-honor. Best man for the bridegroom will be his brother, Dominick Gennantonio, Jr., of Thomas. Miss Jumbo was graduated from Thomas high school in 1940 and Mr. Gennantonio was graduated from Thomas high in 1936 and is employed by the Davis Coal and Coke Company of Davis.

THE OLD LINE

By JOHN F. CHANDLER

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6 (AP)—Just like the guy who said "boy on boy," I had a million dollars' worth of stuff today and assume the Mason-Dixon Conference also takes in football.

The new conference of Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and District of Columbia teams got off to a swell start in basketball and track, but the game has yet to break down a lot of grid barriers and traditional pigskin encounters.

Thus, only talk has resulted to date in prospects for a regular football competition under conference blessing.

So, on the "if" basis, perhaps a perusal of figures might prove the conference would be a good thing, and again, maybe not, but here goes:

First off, if the seven of the twelve-member Mason-Dixon basketball loop who play football were banded together in a football league, Randolph-Macon of Virginia would be on top, with two victories and no defeats to date in games played strictly with other conference members.

Several teams play others here mentioned before the 1941 grid season ends, but this is how they stand in the "if" league in games played against each other to date:

	W	L	T	TP	OP
Rand. Macon	2	0	0	26	7
Delaware	2	0	0	25	3
West. Maryland	1	0	0	24	21
American U.	1	0	0	23	11
Washington	1	0	0	22	13
Mt. St. Mary's	0	2	0	21	40
Johns Hopkins	0	2	0	20	27

Randolph-Macon defeated Washington college, 13-0, and American U., 13-7, while Delaware holds a 29-0 victory over Mt. St. Mary's, and Western Maryland, a 24-21 decision over Mt. St. Mary's.

American defeated Johns Hopkins, 21-0. Washington college stopped Johns Hopkins, 6-0.

Thus, it may be noted, most of the clubs appear to be in about the same class, although you'd get a flock of arguments from many coaches, alumni, etc., if you tried to prove the case.

Now, to go along a little further here are the 1941 season standings to date, including games against all comers:

	W	L	T	TP	OP
Delaware	4	0	1	101	7
Washington C.	2	0	0	28	3
West. Maryland	2	3	1	70	92
Mt. St. Mary's	2	4	0	40	97
Rand. Macon	2	3	0	52	159
American U.	1	4	0	42	39
Johns Hopkins	0	4	0	7	70

The all-comers standing shows Delaware has upheld prestige of Mason-Dixon teams by meeting schools in its own class. The Hens tied West Chester Teachers, 7-7, then went on to defeat Penn. Mill. 20-0, Ursinus, 24-0, Dickinson, 25-0, plus the 25-0 win over Mt. St. Mary's.

Washington college tripped Juniata, 26-0, besides the 6-0 win over Johns Hopkins; but in addition to Randolph-Macon's 13-0 victory over the Shermen, Penn. Military slapped Washington down, 22-6.

Stepping into faster company, Western Maryland defeated Cortland, N. Y., 34-6, and Mt. St. Mary's as heretofore mentioned; tied University of Maryland, 6-6; and lost to Gettysburg, 0-19; Boston University, 0-14; and Bucknell, 6-26.

Mt. St. Mary's stopped Potomac State, 6-0; and La Salle, 7-6; then lost to George Washington, 0-25; Western Maryland; Elon, Elon, N. C., 6-21; and Delaware.

Topping the Mason-Dixon "if" league is Randolph-Macon, with its wins over Washington and American U., but the Virginia Yellow Jackets bit off big tough chunks in losing to Florida, 0-26; Richmond, 0-26; William and Mary, 7-51; Newport News Apprentice, 7-20; and Wofford, 13-28.

American university defeated only Johns Hopkins, and has lost to Susquehanna, 0-6; Swarthmore, 0-20; Allegheny, 14-20; and Randolph Macon.

And in the cellar is Johns Hopkins, with no wins and losses to Washington college and American, Haverford, 0-38, and Susquehanna, 7-8.

Naturally, if the Mason-Dixon moguls got together on a football plan, outside games wouldn't count in conference standings, and a minimum number of games would be required between each member to lay claim for the title.

However, a study of the figures indicates the "if" conference would stand an excellent chance of ringing the bell.

Unbeaten Kiefer Wins All Races Lying Down

Adolph Kiefer, Olympic swimming champion, hasn't been beaten in a race since 1935 and he wins them all lying down. His aquatic success while in a horizontal position has made this twenty-three-year-old Chicagoan king of the world backstroke swimmers.

He won the 100-meter backstroke title at the national A. A. U. men's outdoor meet in St. Louis recently for the seventh straight year. From fifty yards to a mile, he holds virtually every backstroke and individual medley record on the books.

A $1 bill his father gave him for placing second in a Y.M.C.A. meet when he was eleven years old has been Kiefer's inspiration.

CHAPMAN OUT

Outfielder Ben Chapman, boasting a dozen years in the majors, has been given his unconditional release by the Chicago White Sox. Chapman has played with New York, Cleveland and Washington and has a major league batting average of slightly better than 300.

The body temperature of a snake depends entirely on the temperature of the surrounding air.

Official at Ball Game Writes Story Afterward

Talk about your busy men Lloyd Larson, former University of Wisconsin star and now "The Milwaukee Sentinel," who was head line man for the Arizona-Notre Dame game, left Notre Dame in his official clothes, ate his dinner en route and drove into Waukesha, Wis., four minutes before the start of a night game in which he was officiating.

He tarried in Waukesha only long enough to grab a handful of notes on the game, kept by a student, from which he wrote his story for Sunday morning's paper. Whee!

Cornell's Loss of Coach Gives Army Interviewer

When Cornell University lost an assistant football coach in the draft, Port Niagara, western New York Army post, gained an interviewer. Private Robert Boociever, twenty-three years old, assistant coach of Carl Snavely's 150-pound football squads for the last three years, has been assigned to the classification department of the 1213th Reception Center at Port Niagara. Boociever's job is concerned with placing drafted men in the right spots in the Army. He attempts to determine for what work each is best fitted.

Cafe Society Takes Shine To Beau Jack, Boxer

Boxing always has had its colorful figures, but Beau Jack, lightweight, is one of the latest and best of the bunch. He's the result of a pool got up by some of New York cafe society folk and numbers among its ardent rooters such persons as Frank Crumit, Mrs. Tom Yawkey, Billy DeBeck, Cliff Roberts and Chick Wergeles.

Most Games Won

DETROIT—Strange as it seems, more Big Ten Conference games have been won by the University of Chicago grid representatives than by any other Western Conference club. The now-defunct Chicagoans won 120 games in their time. Minnesota, Illinois and Michigan all have passed the century mark.

Irish Students Pick Game

The Notre Dame students each football season vote upon one game of the Fighting Irish schedule which they attend in a body. This season, and for the first time, they have selected the Navy game, and will be present Saturday with their 100-piece band.

Grid De-Emphasis Finally Affects Price of Tickets

Stanford and California
Lead Way in Reducing Admission Fees

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Special Service—The emphasis is on de-emphasis in college football this fall, and if it is done anything else, which haven't, they at least have seen the pressure of the game as a whole by providing a blueprint of how horrible things can be when a school decides that a losing season is a badge of honor.

Which it may be, although many alumni would just as soon not wear it when he comes into contact with loud-voiced gents who take great pride in the fact that their football teams are more favorably known than their names in medicine and law.

It is an odd fact that when the country in waves, and many schools were bleating to the effect that college football had gone commercial, these same schools made mention of a possible de-emphasis of the price of admission to games.

Coast Teams Lead Way

We always have felt that the price of football tickets for major games was not in keeping with the cost of production, and that asking the customers to pay $2.50 and up to see a bunch of athletes who are performing without financial remuneration, or so we've been told, is like putting a tax on sunshine. Which is such a good comparison, at least as sunshine could be classed as overhead.

Anyway, the idea that high-class football cannot be presented at stock company prices is being refuted out of the West coast, where year in and year out the football stacks up with any in the country.

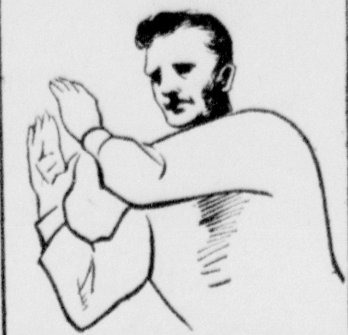

Stanford and California steadily have been lowering the cost of their tickets, and last Saturday Stanford and Santa Clara, two of the best teams out there, played before a crowd which paid either $1.50 or $2.00 for each ticket.

Stanford started its ticket price de-emphasis last year, and the reason possibly was that they saw something of a problem in trying to sell ten-cent football for carage-trade prices. The Cardinals had won only one game in 1939, and with a new coach they probably figured the chances for too great an improvement in 1940 were less than real.

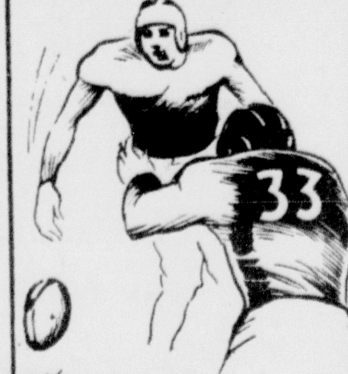

Much to everyone's amazement Stanford came through 1940 undefeated and went on to win the Rose Bowl game last January. On that record a return to generally accepted admission prices seemed to be in order for 1941, as, with a team

PENALTY ON THE PLAY

SIGNAL: Both hands as illustrated.

VIOLATION: Intentional grounding of forward pass. A forward pass may not be intentionally thrown to the ground or into an ineligible player who is on or behind the line of scrimmage to save loss of yardage.

PENALTY: Loss of a down, the ball to be put in play 15 yards back of the spot of the preceding down. This penalty may not be declined unless the pass becomes incomplete behind or on the passer's goal line.

that promised to be right in there this fall, and with the "T" formation receiving great publicity, the fans might be expected to pay anything within reason.

Experiment Worked

The 1940 cut-rate experiment had worked out even better than expected however, so the price scale was retained for this year. The theory undoubtedly was that it is better to have two fans paying $1.50 each than one fan paying $3.

We've gone to many a big saucer holding anywhere from 50,000 up

Resod Stadium

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6 (AP)—Despite a light downpour of rain—a major factor bearing on the Notre Dame-Navy football game Saturday—workmen today finished the job of re-sodding 10,000 square feet of the playing field on Municipal Stadium, where all the 66,000 seats have been sold.

The re-sodding job, requested by Naval academy officials, was finished late this afternoon after morning rain forced suspension of work.

The forecast was for rain tonight and clear and colder tomorrow.

At Annapolis, Navy athletic officials said the re-sodding was undertaken to make a "good playing surface." They said the field between the thirty-yard lines was worn bare and would be a "mud puddle" if dry, and a "dust bowl" if dry.

Frank Leahy, Notre Dame coach, has said that a muddy field would favor Swede Larson's Middles and their ground attack, while the grid experts figure a dry, fast field would benefit the Irish and their passing game.

And seen fans huddled in little knots here and there, with huge sections of the stands yawning drearily. And the fans, too, in some instances. The attendance could have been doubled or trebled by knocking down the price to within reason.

It is admitted that many schools still are paying for their stadiums, and that the game has more income tax exemptions than the head of a big family. Football supports most of the minor sports at a school.

But we would like to argue that, with the exception of the "naturals" which pack the stadiums regardless of price, the income would be just about the same if the admission prices were slashed to give the fan who has to budget his dollars a chance to attend.

The Unbeaten Test

Saturday is a day when more than one of the so-far unbeaten teams may have their scalps removed. Fordham, Duke, Texas and Minnesota are not on this list. They have little to worry about, although Pittsburgh can keep Fordham's Rams busy. Those that may be heading for trouble include Notre Dame, Navy, Army and Texas A. and M. At least one of these must fall overboard, and possibly two.

The Top Game

Navy-Notre Dame—In this Baltimore upheaval Notre Dame's first-class passing and running attack will be thrown against a strong Navy defense, plus a good Navy offense. Navy will have to check both Bertelli's passing and the ball carrying speed of Jurwik and Evans. Notre Dame will have to break through a powerful line and stop a hard-hitting Navy attack. Navy has the better reserves. The edge goes to Navy in what should be one of the greatest of all Navy-Notre Dame meetings.

Army-Harvard

Two strong defensive teams with two strong, aggressive lines. Harvard's teams always move further up as November games come on. In Mazur, Hill and Hatch, Army attack has the definite advantage. A rough test for Army, but Army gets the call.

Texas A. & M.-Southern Methodist

Texas A. and M. is another unbeaten squad that faces possible, if not probable defeat. Homer Norton is another coach who has turned in an able job by remaining unspotted this long after losing almost his entire first string from a year ago. S. M. U. is almost certain to come storming back after her massacre by Texas. Close to a standoff with Texas A. and M. having the edge.

Alabama-Tulane

When the Crimson Tide of Alabama meets the Green Wave of Tulane you can look for one of the big splashes of the year. These two teams were picked to rule by southern experts in September. Alabama fell before Mississippi State, while Tulane was stopped by both Rice and Mississippi. Both are loaded with man power. Tulane seems to win every other Saturday. The Wave won last Saturday. This favors the Tide in the big game of the South.

Fordham-Pittsburgh

A Ram victory is due, but no Ram romp. Pittsburgh has moved up several notches in the last two weeks and can be dangerous if Fordham stumbles into an off-day. Fordham has too many good backs.

Stanford-Southern California

Southern California whipped Oregon State, the team that beat Stanford. But Stanford is due for another step in the general direction of the Pasadena party, with Director Frankie Albert handling the show.

Syracuse-Penn State

Syracuse is another strong football outfit that has been moving up steadily and now is well up in polite gridiron society. Penn State is a first-class opponent with a chance, but Syracuse should win.

The Ivy League

Dartmouth over Princeton in a close contest—Pennsylvania has too many reserves for Lou Little's small Columbia squad to ward off—Yale, struggling for her second win of the year, should find Cornell too strong—Brown is picked over Holy Cross.

Missouri-N. Y. U.

Don Faurot's Missouri Tigers have entirely too many claws and fangs for N. Y. U. this season. Missouri is now among the country's best, while the Mal Stevens squad has never recovered from the draft raiding that wrecked his squad.

Mississippi Entries

The busy state of Mississippi has one of the highest football ratings. Mississippi State has suffered only one tie and Mississippi has suffered only one defeat plus one tie. The former is picked over Auburn and the latter over L. S. U.

Big Nine Battles

Minnesota much too strong for Nebraska, even with so many Gopher casualties. Northwestern has too much all-around stuff for an improving Indiana squad. Purdue has a slight margin over Michigan State. Iowa is picked over Illinois in another good scrap. Ohio State and Wisconsin rate a draw.

Other Nominations

Manhattan over Boston University—Texas over Baylor—Duke over Davidson—Georgia Tech over Kentucky—Duquesne over St. Mary's—Georgetown over Maryland—Boston College over Wake Forest—Detroit over Marquette—Washington over California—Oregon State over U. C. L. A.—Washington State over Idaho

Mount St. Mary's And Upsala College

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Nov. 6 (AP)—A crowd of 2,500 to 3,000 persons is expected to witness the football game tomorrow night at the stadium between Mount St. Mary's and Upsala college.

Rain which fell today will not affect the playing field, officials said, and the weatherman has predicted clearing and cooler weather for the clash.

The battle will be one the Mounts have been looking forward to since a year ago, when Upsala surprised Coach James (Bull) Draper's Emmitsburg eleven and defeated the Marylanders, 14-0.

Originally slated to be played at Emmitsburg Saturday, the game was switched to Hagerstown, under auspices of the Kiwanis club's underprivileged children's fund.

Both teams appear about equally balanced, although neither has had a winning season. The Mounts have won two and lost four, and the Orange, N. J. Vikings, have one victory against four defeats.

Draper sent his squad through a light drill at Emmitsburg this afternoon and reports all regulars and other squad members are in shape and ready to go.

Notre Dame Squad Leaves for Baltimore

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 6 (AP)—Notre Dame football players left this afternoon by train for their Navy game in Baltimore Saturday. They will stay in Washington Friday. That afternoon the 100-piece band and some 300 other students will begin a journey to Baltimore.

120,602 in Month Is All-Time Mark; Caboose Building Program To Start Nov. 10

An all-time record for handling cars in the Cumberland yards of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad was established in the month of October, it was announced yesterday by John Edwards, Jr., superintendent of the Cumberland division. Edwards said that a total of 120,602 cars were handled during the month, smashing all past marks for the B. & O. here. The previous high was established in August and was 113,750 cars. As a comparison between the present upsurge and that of the past, Edwards related that 95,000 cars a month was considered "big business" fifteen years ago.

The work of seeing that the trains are moved through the local yard is carried on under the direction of John Read, terminal trainmaster, and his immediate assistants, Warren T. Fry, general yardmaster, and William Read, acting night general yardmaster.

Operation at Cumberland in addition to the transportation office is made up of the car department, of which Car Foreman C. M. Scott is supervisor.

Edwards pointed out that the handling of the business necessitates a rapid turnover of motive power which is taken care of under direction of Iva L. Harper, master mechanic; W. M. Robinson, assistant master mechanic, and A. E. Beckman, general foreman. The mechanical department is further assisted by the continued output from the backshops of locomotives overhauled and placed in almost new condition under direction of A. E. Bennett, superintendent, and W. J. Dixon, general foreman.

Oil shipments large

"Through the co-operation of these men the Cumberland yard is making rapid strides in handling the business currently being offered in a record breaking amount on account of the many defense shipments," the local superintendent declared.

"It is indeed a sight to see trains of ninety tank cars moving eastward from Cumberland with crude oil for eastern seaport refineries. On several days of the past month there was moved through this terminal as much as one million gallons of oil (each tank car holds 10,000 gallons).

Edwards stated that arrangements are being made at this time to concentrate forces on the construction of new steel type cabooses at Keyser, W. Va., under the direction of shop superintendent F. J. Crockett and W. L. McGuire.

This work was held up for some time due to the difficulty in securing steel for the fabrication of these cars. The material, however, is now available and the production of the cabooses will begin on Monday, November 10.

One hundred all-steel cabooses of the bay window type, a safety feature, will be built in the Keyser shops. Each caboose is valued at $3,000. The 562 men now employed in Keyser will be divided to work on the new cars. A total of 1,750 steel box cars were recently built in Keyser over an extended period.

Heavy repairs are being made in Keyser on an average of fifteen cars daily and light repairs on an average of fifty steel hoppers daily for use in the railroad's coal business.

Handling of the record amount of cars here and the car-building program being carried on in Keyser indicates the big part that railroad is playing in the transportation of much needed materials for the national defense program.

Five Hundred Persons Will Seek To Enroll 15,000 Members Soon

The organization of volunteer workers for the annual Roll Call of Allegheny County Chapter American Red Cross is rapidly being completed, and when the campaign for 15,000 members gets underway November 11, nearly 500 persons will be enlisted to work in the drive.

Mrs. W. Lee Witherspoon, county chairman of Red Cross, said last evening, "all chairmen and leaders in the county have been appointed and these leaders are now selecting their teams of workers."

Fred Z. Hetzel, Roll Call chairman stated, "The response to our appeal for workers in the membership campaign, indicates that Red Cross is known and understood in the whole county. If the public respond with memberships as readily as men and women in all walks of life have responded in our call for volunteer workers, we will easily reach our goal of 15,000 members in this county."

Celanese Employee Is Electrocuted While at Work

Artificial Respiration Fails To Revive Joseph Horton

Joseph Horton, 45, of Frostburg, a Celanese employee, was pronounced dead at 7 o'clock last evening by Dr. Linne H. Corson, county medical examiner, who said death was caused by electrocution as the result of an accident which occurred at the Celanese plant yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. A squad of volunteer first aid men applied artificial respiration for six hours in a futile effort to revive the man.

Horton had been employed for thirteen years as an electrician in the engineering department of the Celanese corporation. Dr. Corson said he was informed that Horton was attempting to splice a wire carrying 440 volts so he could change motors on an oil pump at the time of the accident.

Fellow employees said Horton was changing the motors on an oil pump located in what is known as the "plant field," adding that Horton apparently thought he had thrown the switch and was about to make the motor change when he was knocked suddenly to the ground. He jumped up immediately, they said, and made about two steps before falling to the ground unconscious.

A squad of volunteer workers carried him and placed it under Horton to protect him from the damp ground and began to rub his hands and feet. The company pulmotor was rushed to the scene and under the supervision of M. W. W. safety engineer at the plant, artificial respiration was applied for six hours. Dr. C. P. Snyder, plant physician aided in the respiration efforts.

Horton resided with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Horton, Spring street, Frostburg. Besides his parents he is survived by one daughter, Leota Horton, also of Frostburg, two brothers, Newton Horton, Philadelphia, Pa.; Robert Horton, Baltimore, and one sister, Mrs. Samuel Beeman, Eckhart.

The body was removed to the Hafer funeral home pending funeral arrangements.

Armistice Parade Will Be Largest In City's History

Between Three and Four Thousand School Children To Participate

Thousands of Cumberland school pupils will join in Tuesday's Armistice day parade to help make it one of the greatest mass demonstrations of patriotism in the city's history, according to Howard P. Loughrie, vice-commander of the Mountain district of the American Legion.

Loughrie, who will be marshal of the Legion-sponsored parade, conferred last night with Charles L. Kopp, county superintendent of schools, and principals of all public schools of the city. He reported that he had been promised 100 per cent support by these school officials, who indicated that between 3,000 and 4,000 pupils would take part in the demonstration.

Expect 2,500 From Public Highs

Allegheny and Fort Hill high schools are expected to contribute a total of approximately 2,500 to the marching columns of students, while Carver high will be represented by 100 pupils.

Razing of Buildings Damaged by Blast Nears Completion

The work of razing buildings damaged by the explosion October 2 on North Centre street will be completed within a week or ten days, it was announced yesterday by John S. Cook, contractor.

One story of the three-story structure owned by the Gillette estate is still standing as are two floors of the three-story Wilson building, the ground floor of which was occupied by the Nu Bakery. Material being salvaged from the buildings is being sold almost as fast as it is removed, according to Cook. Thirty thousand bricks were sold yesterday at the rate of $8-to-$10 a thousand, depending on their condition. The contractor also said there is a big demand for second hand lumber.

The largest piece of equipment to be placed on sale is an elevator which was removed from the rear of the Gillette building, Cook said.

The party, which will include a dance and floor show, is tentatively scheduled to be held at the State Armory Saturday night, December 27. Refreshments will be served.

Defeat of Hitler Best U. S. Policy To Help Latin-America, Says Reed

Export Manager of Kelly-Springfield Addresses Kiwanis Club

The United States can best carry out its good-neighbor policy toward the nations of Latin-America "by assisting them to maintain their independence—which means by defeating Hitler's ends," Carl L. Reed, export manager of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, told members of the Kiwanis club yesterday afternoon.

"That can't be done by having movie actresses visit Rio or Buenos Aires," he said, "but by clearing the extraordinary muddle in Washington and actively prosecuting the present war to a successful end."

Speaking at the club's weekly luncheon-meeting at the Fort Cumberland hotel, Reed, who is just back from a trip to Central America, asserted flatly that there is little or no basis in widespread ideas that Uncle Sam is hated and feared by his southern neighbors.

Don't Dislike Americans

"Most of our Latin-American neighbors to the south do not dislike Americans, or America, and never did," the speaker stated flatly. Citizens of these countries can't be easily classified as pro-American or anti-American, pro-German or anti-German, Reed went on. First, last and always, they are "their-own-country," he said, adding that "you can't blame them for that."

"These countries are all independent as independent as this country," the Kiwanians were told. "Politically they do not accept any influence from outside."

"This was shown in high relief when Bolivia, which seemed to have a stronger German influence than any other, tried to stage a revolution headed by strongly pro-German elements."

"All the country and most of the army rose against them and threw them out. The country wasn't going to be pro-German; it was going to be pro-Bolivian."

Citing deposed President Arias of Panama as a specific example, Reed explained the reason for apparent pro-German feeling among Latin-American politicians.

These men, directing the activities of our good neighbors, "are not living in the United States," he said. "They do not see what we think we see."

Lack Our Optimism

"They do not have our overwhelming and incurable optimism in thinking that no matter what is done in Washington, no matter how many strikes we have, we will eventually win and down Hitler."

There are those that believe that the safety of their national existence depends upon their playing what they believe to be the winning horse and in not having been actively pro-American.

As to actual Nazi activity in Latin-American countries, Reed pointed out that the immigrant communities there include few American born, but many Germans and Italians.

"The Germans," he continued, "are well organized. They have their plans laid—and well laid. Chiefs of each section are already in place."

"If and when the German campaign reaches maturity and are successful and Germany is free to influence directly, both commercially and with armed forces, then the combination of those local politicians who have believed Germany would win with the Germans on the ground will take over not one but several of these governments and make them subordinate. Then they will become active spear heads against this country."

Friendship Only Security

However, Reed added "wise and farseeing politicians know that such German success would make their countries decidedly subordinate to (Continued on Page 11, Col. 1)

Post-Defense Employment Is Discussed Here

Objectives of Public Work Reserve Long-Range Program Outlined

Problems to be faced by the City of Cumberland when the war ends were the subject of a lengthy discussion yesterday at city hall between Everett L. Gonyou, director of the Public Work Reserve, Federal Works agency, and Mayor Harry Irvine and Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer.

Mr. Gonyou, who was accompanied by Hamilton G. Walker, area planning engineer, explained that the objectives of the Public Work Reserve are:

1. To assemble data and estimates on the cost, character, volume and distribution of potential public improvements of a needed or useful character. These may be used by federal agencies in Washington to establish a basis for a board program of public works to absorb post-defense or emergency employment.
2. To encourage and assist public agencies, such as state, county and local governments, in assembling data and in preparing long-range public improvements programs based on actual need and ability to finance.
3. To follow the original programs prepared and to assist state and local governments in an annual review so that a carefully developed long-range program of public works is always available and ready.

The first operation of the Public Work Reserve will be to assist local governments in compiling lists of needed improvements and in evaluating and grouping these projects in terms of relative overall community need.

Gonyou explained the PWR is no funding agency and the listing of a project does not assure backing by the federal government. He asked the city's aid in listing needed, sound and useful projects which the city is planning or would like to undertake in the next six years.

Projects Recommended

Among the projects recommended for the long-range program by Mayor Irvine and City Engineer Rizer were flood protection, an outfall sewer on the Bedford road and the emergency water line for the city.

Gonyou pointed out that our greatest resource is men-at-work, a resource which is lost forever when men are idle. Full employment, he said, is therefore the key to national prosperity as well as individual welfare in the modern world of power, machinery, labor specialization and technology.

When the defense program is concluded many persons will be without work, Gonyou declared, and he recommended the long-range post-war program of the PWR as one of the means of helping solve the problem.

City Must Plan Ahead

By planning ahead, he added, a city can be ready to take up the slack immediately when defense employment falls off and in the period when private industry adjusts itself back into a peacetime program.

The mayor and city engineer assured Messrs. Gonyou and Walker complete co-operation by the city in the new program.

Community Chest To Elect Seven Directors Nov. 21

Six of the seven members of the board of directors of the Cumberland Community Chest whose terms are expiring have been renominated and will stand for election along with eight other candidates at the annual meeting of the Chest Friday evening, November 21.

Leslie Helmer, chairman of the Nominating committee, reported yesterday that the committee had renominated Harold W. Smith, Frederick Z. Hetzel, Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum, Mrs. William M. Somerville, Miles G. Thompson and Mrs. J. George Zilch. The seventh retiring member is Helmer, who declined to be a candidate for re-election.

Members of the Nominating committee included, besides Helmer, Mrs. Edgar Vandegrift, Mrs. Lee Witherspoon, F. Allan Weatherholt, Victor D. Heisey and Ralph James.

It was also announced yesterday by Harold W. Smith, Chest president, that the program at the annual meeting, to be held at 7:30 p. m. November 21 at Central YMCA, will be a departure from the usual routine.

Instead of hearing the formal annual reports of the officers, members present will listen to a panel discussion of Chest activities by the executives of all the participating agencies, Smith said.

Baby Strangles To Death Here

George Leo Spicer Is Found Dead in Bed at Parents' Home

George Leo Spicer, nine-week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Spicer, Bowman's addition, was found dead in his bed early yesterday morning. Death was caused by accidental strangulation, according to Dr. Linne H. Corson, county medical examiner.

The infant, Dr. Corson said, was given a bottle at 11 o'clock Wednesday night and was found dead near his lips. The child, evidently, strangled to death when the milk went down his windpipe.

The infant was in perfect health except for a slight head cold. The cold perhaps was a factor in the strangulation, Dr. Corson added.

Dr. Corson said that he had made a careful examination of the body and that there was no possibility of death through suffocation.

Surviving besides his parents are one sister, Brenda Spicer; two grandmothers, Mrs. Zella Prantz, Bedford road, and Mrs. Walter May, Hagerstown.

The body was removed to the home of an uncle, Herman Greise, Valley road. Funeral services will be held at the home Saturday morning.

Interment will be in SS. Peter and Paul cemetery, with short services at the grave.

Edward Wegman Resigns as Head Of City Strikers

President of Local 812 Says 50 Per Cent of Men Want To Work

Resignation of Edward P. Wegman as president of Local 812 Municipal Employees Union, effective yesterday, is the latest development reported in the seventeen-day strike of seven city departments of the water and street departments of the City of Cumberland.

Wegman's resignation was requested by John M. Buzby, of Washington, D. C., representative of the International Hod Carriers' Building and Common Laborers Union of America, after the former announced yesterday that a meeting of the union will be held today at 2 p. m. in Allegheny Trades Council hall for members only. In calling the meeting Wegman stressed the fact that A. F. of L. advisors and representatives would be barred.

Plan Regular Meeting

Buzby announced last night that there will be no special meeting called by Wegman but that the men will continue to hold their daily get-together session with A. F. of L. advisors and representatives who come to attend.

Charles Whitacre, chairman of the union's grievance committee, said that Eugene A. Minke, vice president, automatically becomes head of Local 812 following Wegman's resignation.

When contacted last night, Wegman said that his letter of resignation as head of the union originally was dated November 5. He said he wrote the letter on that day because he found out that he was unable to please some of his fellow workers and A. F. of L. representatives. He added that the date on the letter of resignation was changed to November 6 after he was asked to resign.

Men Anxious To Return

"I've talked to the men personally," Wegman declared, "and have found that they are in favor of returning to work. I feel the same way about the matter. The mayor and council are the matter. The mayor and council will not meet the union's grievance committee because the municipal officials are convinced the city attorney's advice that it is illegal to meet the city to sign a union contract is final."

Wegman, who is employed in the water department, also said that after Buzby requested that he resign he told the A. F. of L. representative that he would do so and turn over his letter to the union.

In spite of Buzby's statement to the effect that the meeting called for today by Wegman is off, the latter said that a group of strikers plan to assemble anyway at 2 p. m. today at Trades Council hall to vote on whether they will return to work or remain idle.

Insurance Firm Must Pay $349.10 Judgment in Unusual Case Here

Beachy and won the $300 judgment in the October term, 1940. After being unable to collect from Beachy because of his lack of funds, he unsuccessfully sought payment from the insurance company, daily bringing suit.

Charging "collusion" the insurance firm defended its claim of immunity from liability on the ground that Beachy, although admittedly the holder of liability policy in good standing, testified at the trial of the suit, to facts which differed materially from two written statements he gave the insurance company shortly after the fatal accident.

Denied Negligence

Uncontradicted testimony showed that three days after the accident Beachy signed a statement in which he said the brakes on the truck were not defective and that he never had any previous trouble with them. Again on February 17, two days after the tragedy, he made a similar statement.

Jury Rules Company Is Liable in Death of Henry Broadwater

In one of the few cases of its kind in Maryland legal history, Mrs. Nettie Garlitz, administrator of the estate of Henry Broadwater, yesterday won a $349.10 judgment in circuit court against the Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Company.

Deliberating less than a half-hour, a jury held that the automobile insurance firm was liable for a $300 judgment returned a year ago against Randall Beachy, a policy holder in the company, as damages for the death of Henry Broadwater, his uncle by marriage.

Truck Caused Fatal Injury

Broadwater was fatally injured at Beachy's Potomac Park home on February 5, 1940, when a truck owned by Beachy and parked on and sloping driveway "ran away" and plowed Broadwater against the wall of the house.

Mrs. Garlitz, sister of Broadwater and mother-in-law of Beachy, brought suit in circuit court against

Four Local Girls Slightly Injured In Auto Accident

Four local girls were slightly injured at 7:30 o'clock last evening when an automobile in which they were riding, driven by Miss Dorothy Dawson, 514 Rose Hill avenue, skidded on the wet Cumberland street bridge and went out of control, crashing against the railing of the bridge and then against two parked cars.

Miss Dorothy Dawson, driver of the car, suffered a slight cut on the lower lip. Miss Martha Ewing, 14, 569 Attnett terrace, suffered a laceration of the lower left lip. Slightly bruised were Miss Elva May Nesbitt, 11, of 614 Rose Hill avenue, and Miss Jeanne Marquis, 10, of 514 Cumberland street.

The girls were treated in the Allegheny hospital dispensary at 7:45 o'clock.

Officers John G. Powers and T. T. Griffin, who investigated said the car apparently skidded on the steel plates of the bridge, jumped the sidewalk and struck the railing. From there it crashed and struck the rear of a car parked on the side of the street which in turn bumped the machine ahead. All three cars were taken to local garages.
